Great Cherry Substitute!
LENGA
(Nothofagus pumilio)

Other names: Chilean Cherry, South American Beech, Rauli, Coigue and Coihue

Lenga grows in the Andes Mountains. It grows in a variety of areas and normally grows in shallow soil and requires low temperatures for its development. Lenga reaches heights of up to 130 feet with trunk diameters that are often 24 to 36 inches or larger.

The sapwood is tan to pale pink and the heartwood closely resembles American Cherry's heartwood. The grain pattern is also like that of American Cherry. Lenga is a real value, with cost less than that of American Cherry lumber.

Lenga's beautiful grain and color have allowed this wood to be among the preferred for fine furniture, solid doors, mouldings, cabinets and flooring. Lenga carves and turns well and Lenga sands, moulds and glues with no problems and accepts finishes well.

When you purchase China Birch Plywood, how do you know what quality you will receive?

The answer is simple...purchase China Birch from Hogan Hardwoods & Moulding. Hogan's China Birch suppliers deliver product based on the following Hogan grading rules!

PREMIUM LFE (RED COLOR CODE)

STANDARD (GREEN COLOR CODE)

4. Hogan STANDARD grade China Birch is produced from high-end factories only and is superior in quality to the average China Birch production.

VALUE (BLACK COLOR CODE)

1. The grading of the faces and backs is interpreted more liberally than the STANDARD grade.
2. Core construction is the same as our STANDARD grade.
3. This grade is most widely imported in the U.S. market.
